Writing Assignment:

Consider the following quote:

“Well then,” said Freckles. “It’s only that I feel all over as if I belonged there. I could wear fine clothes and move over those floors and hold me own against the best of them.” (page 189)

Could this be foreshadowing? How might it happen that Freckles will wear fine clothes and know how to move about among the rich and influential? Will Freckles find out that he has a family and is actually wealthy? Will he inherit McLean’s wealth? Will he marry the Angel and share in her father’s money? Will Freckles make his own mark and become educated and wealthy? What is your guess? Write a paragraph.

Writing Assignment:

Re-read pages 245 and 246. It is obvious that this snake of a man, Black Jack, made a poor choice in crossing the deepest part of the swamp when the dry weather had forced the bulk of the snakes into it. Jack was simply "out-snaked."

Write 200 words exploring this idea. Entitle your paper When the Snake Gets Rattled.

This is a fun, way-out assignment! Be creative.

Writing Assignment:

On page 253, we can read a classic example of personification:

The Limberlost was now arrayed as the Queen of Sheba in all her glory. The first frosts of autumn had bejewelled her crown in flashing topaz, ruby, and emerald. Around her feet trailed the purple of her garments, while in her hand was her golden scepter.

This is not the first time that Gene Stratton-Porter has used personification to describe the Limberlost. On page 213, we find this quote:

When the mighty tree fell, the Limberlost shivered and screamed with the echo.

On page 18, there is another example of personification. In this quote, the Limberlost is even given gender by the pronoun choice.

The Limberlost stirred gently, then shook herself, growled, and awoke around him (Freckles).

Let's review the meaning of personification. It is simply giving human qualities to entities that are not human. A swamp cannot really hold a golden scepter. A swamp cannot really scream. A swamp cannot really growl.

Your assignment is to write a short story (about 3 paragraphs) where something that does not normally have human qualities is personified. Suggestions:

A story about a tree that talks.

A narrative about a car that drives itself.

A poem about a pot that tells you what to put in it as you cook.

Be creative and have fun with this!

Writing Assignment:

Consider the following passage from the text:

For the first time she was talking to him and avoiding his eyes. That was not like the Angel at all.

The Angel had quite a bit to tell Freckles, yet she did not come right to the point. She began telling him a story about some relatives who were looking for a boy much like him. And she did not look him in the eyes as she talked. Why do you suppose she did this? Write a paragraph explaining your ideas. (If you need some help, read pages 328 – 329 for more details. Start with the last paragraph on page 328. It begins “‘It seems to me,’ said Freckles...” Then read all the way to the bottom of page 329.)
